<<Winning the Global T>>

内容概要

There's a growing consensus that the current job development system both in the US and overseas--is badly broken. Too many people can't find good jobs. Too many businesses can't find qualified people. What's behind the deep talent shortages that now confront the United States and much of the world? And how can we rebuild the pipeline?

作者简介： EDWARD E. GORDON is President of the Imperial Consulting Corporation. He has also taught for 20 years at three Chicago-area universities: DePaul, Loyola, and Northwestern. He is the author of many articles and 12 other books, including Closing the Literacy Gap (1991), Futurework (1994), Enhancing Learning (1998), and Skills Wars (2000).
