章节摘录

In traditional education , the teacher may feel that the students are not very grown up. Usually , teachers are older than students , and teachers feel that students are young and do not know very much about the world. The teachers feel that they must tell the students what to do most of the time , and that they must make the students study specific things. In open education , the teacher's feelings are very different. These teachers feel that the students are individuals first , and students second. They expect the students to be responsible for the things that they do. The teacher allows the students to decide what they want to do , and does not make them study specific subjects or things. The teacher lets them decide what to study and how much to study. The second part of the idea of open education has to do with what the teacher does in the classroom. In the traditional classroom , the students are told what to do. There is a list of things that the students must do to finish the class. There are rules made by the teacher that the students must follow , even if the students see no reason for the rules. In open education , the teacher allows the students to choose what to do. There are no specific things for the students to do. There are no traditional rules made by the teacher. The students are allowed to discover subjects in the open class-room , instead of being made to study them.?
