<<世界美食在北京>>

前言

In the world of finance or more precisely investment banking, food is a particularly hot topic! The only "fish" we are comfortable with is to fish for companies or businesses! It's the art of the deal rather than the art of the chef that matters! Not in China! The art of the deal is as important as the art of dining. In fact, as my Chinese friends will even say, having a fine dining experience is sometimes as important, if not more important than the deal! A fine dining experience is definitely the prelude to the deal. Or prelude to more deals. Deal origination can then be said to originate from the dining table especially after a few glasses of that deceptively harmless "bai jiu"! Over in China, dining is indeed an art form. Here, dining together is more than a gathering of fellow private equity professionals, deal makers or entrepreneurs. It is a social lubricant that builds relationships and strengthens ties that we so often take for granted or overlook. Through my exchange and interactions I have come to realize the real significance of China's food culture! Over here, dining is a process. A journey. Not a destination.

《世界美食在北京(英文版)》由外文出版社出版。

When traveling around the world, for visitors venturing to new restaurants, the first delectable mouthful always leaves an indelible impression. Beijing, China's capital, an increasingly internationalized and diversified metropolis, has become a gathering point for the finest cuisines from all over the country as well as around the world. Through this variety of foods, Chinese people can taste flavors from other lands, and people from overseas will feel more at home in Beijing. The delight of dining also comes to a great extent from ease of mind, graceful settings as well as exquisite ambiance and tableware. Good food is not only about good taste, but also about the culture, aesthetic values and philosophy that lie at its root. Life is not only about eating, yet it is incomplete without enjoying food. "Every meal, every day, enrich our life with delicious cuisine." Under such a concept, A World of Fine Restaurants in Beijing collects over 250 dining spots of choice in seven categories, including "International Cuisine," "Business Dining," and "Private Dining." It provides the address, phone number, average price per head for a meal and payment forms, along with the specialties of every restaurant. Thanks to the contents layout and the index, according to dish styles, regions or other features, the book is also very appealing and easy to use.
