<<图书馆员英语选读>>

前言

大家都知道，生活在21世纪的图书馆员掌握一门外语是十分重要的，尤其是英语。如何学好英语，提高英语水平，是当前很多图书馆员困惑的问题。其实，学好英语并不是一件难事，关键在于要掌握好的学习方法。

本着简明、易学和实用精神，我们结合图书馆具体工作实际，经美国、英国、加拿大、印度、澳大利亚和爱尔兰等以英语为母语国家几十所多种类型图书馆（Library and Archives Canada、Syracuse University Library、University of Chicago Library、Cornell University Library、National Library of Ireland、Princeton University Library、Boston Public Library、Seattle : Public Library、University of Washington Libraries等）同意授权，从其网站上摘录有关图书馆具体工作等原版内容。所选部分内容新颖、适用性强、难度较小，侧重图书馆具体工作，适合图书馆员从图书馆工作实际的角度学习专业英语，据此编辑出版的《图书馆员英语选读I》受到广大同行的欢迎。实践证明，只有从实际出发结合图书馆工作实际，才有可能把英语学好。

章节摘录

Digital Collections Over the years, the Library has undertaken numerous efforts to digitize research information, for the purpose of preservation and to enhance access. This web site chronicles these projects and provides a way to search the Library's Digital Collections. The scope of what you can search within these collections will expand over time. The Library Digital Collections Council is now soliciting proposals for digitization projects using our own Library materials. We are especially interested in those collections housed in the Rare Books and Special Collections Department, but we are open to consider all ideas. The highest rankings will be given to those projects that have significant academic value, help support current Princeton faculty in their teaching and/or research, and that will be of particular importance to classroom instruction. The Council will be responsible for prioritizing projects and determining their scheduling. Staffing realities will also determine the scale and timing of projects undertaken. Over the last few years, numerous digital projects and collections each utilizing a wide array of standards —— have been undertaken within the library. Those who have undertaken such projects have found it necessary to research and implement the tools needed to reach their goals without a nucleus of support on the technical and qualitative ends. To offset the lack of such a nucleus, and in an effort to help digital projects adhere to standards early in their production, this site will serve as an online resource documenting best practices for those currently implementing or planning a new digital project.
