章节摘录

On thecontrary it was inhabited by a small class of very rich people and alarge class of very poor ones. There had been another change. The old commander-in-chief whohad been willingly recognised as "headman" or "King" because heknew how to lead his men to victory , had disappeared from the scene. His place had been taken by the nobles - a class of rich people whoduring the course of time had got hold of an undue share of the farmsand estates. These nobles enjoyed many advantages over the common crowd offreemen. They were able to buy the best weapons which were to befound on the market of the eastern Mediterranean. They had much spare time in which they could practise the art of fighting. They livedin strongly built houses and they could hire soldiers to fight for them. They were constantly quarrelling among each other to decide whoshould rule the city. The victorious nobleman then assumed a sort of Kingship over all his neighbours and governed the town until he inturn was killed or driven away by still another ambitious nobleman.
