章节摘录

The Power of a Life One afternoon a few summers ago , I had been clearing brush in the mountains for several hours and decided to reward myself with lunch. Sitting on a log , I unwrapped a sandwich and surveyed the rugged scenery. Two turbulent streams joined to form a clear , deep pool before roaring down a heavily wooded canyon. My idyll would have been perfect had it not been for a persistent bee that began buzzing around me. The bee was of the common variety that plagues picnickers. Without thinking , I brushed it away.

Not the least intimidated , the bee came back and buzzed me again. Now , losing patience , I swatted the pest to the ground and crunched it into the sand with my boot. Moments later I was startled by a minor explosion of sand at my feet. My tormentor emerged with its wings buzzing furiously. This time I took no chances. I stood up and ground the insect into the sand with all my 210 pounds. Once more I sat down to my lunch. After several minutes I became aware of a slight movement near my feet. A broken but still living bee was feebly emerging from the sand. Beguiled by its survival , I leaned down to survey the damage. The right wing was relatively intact , but the left was crumpled like a piece of paper. Nevertheless , the bee kept exercising the wings slowly up and down , as though assessing the damage. It also began to groom its sand-entrusted thorax and abdomen. Next the bee turned its attention to the bent left wing , rapidly smoothing the wing by running its legs down the length. After each straightening session , the bee buzzed its wings as if to test the lift. This hopeless cripple thought it could still fly !
