内容概要

The Epic of Jangar of the Mongolian ethnic group , together with the Tibetan King Gesar and the Kyrgyz Manas , are all famous national epics and historic and cultural treasures of China. The Epic of Jangar , coming into being in the ErutTribe , Mongolia around the 13th century , has been sorted and passed down generation after generation by Jangarqi (artists who devoted their lives to telling and singing Jangar'sstories) , and then gradually spread across Mongolian tribes and become a literary work with profound influence.Over the past century , scholars from China , France , the US , former Soviet Union and Mongolia have sorted and edited The Epic of langar in 15 chapters , 26 chapters and even more than 100 chapters with some differences in plots and characters. The Epic of jangar has been widely spread in Mongolian inhabitant regions. Even today , Jangar , Hongor and the like are still the heroes worshipped by the people. Nevertheless , only limited amount of people are fond of reading epics and watching the performance. For this reason , we attempted to adapt the epic into a novel to present to more readers.

Altan Gheej carefully examined the arrowhead that still penetrated Hongor's body and found it was the sticky type of arrow exclusively used by Bor Magnai. If this arrowhead was stained with blood, it would become stuck in the flesh and muscle and the only way to remove it was to cut it out along with the muscle around it. Altan Gheej knew it would not be feasible to cut it out with a knife, so he decided to tie the arrow with a rope and pull it out. He asked Guzen Gumbato to tie the end of the arrowhead to the rope and then all helped pull it out. In their first attempt, the arrowhead did not come out but the rope broke into three pieces. He then used ten similar ropes to tie the arrowhead and fastened the rope to the neck of a horse to pull. At the same time, fifty strong men were assigned to hold Hongor down. When all preparations were finished, Altan Gheej gave the order and, with concerted efforts, the arrowhead in Hongor's body finally came out. Altan Gheej took out the magic cream drug Honiin Chagaan Em and applied to the wound. A few minutes later, Hongor opened his eyes slowly. Guzen Gumbato was the first one to notice this and shouted excitedly: "Look, our hero opened his eyes! Our hero Hongor has awakened!"

Altan Gheej noticed that Hongor had become healthy, held his hands and said happily and excitedly: "Jangar Khan led us here to support you." Bor Magnai returned to the batdefront and saw a horse dash toward him like a powerful thunderbolt. He thought admiringly: "What a fine horse!"

What a good horse!

In fact, it was the red fine horse he desperately wanted. Sanale, holding a long spear, dashed to Bor Magnai and aimed at him. Bor Magnai nimbly avoided the spear. When he saw this dark man, he guessed: "You are Sanale, right?"

"You are right, but so what?"

"So, the horse you are riding is the red purebred?"

"Of course!"

"Yes, it is a good horse. I have wanted it for a long time, and today, you bring it to me. If you agree, I'm ready to use 100 households of slaves in exchange for it. Or, you could stay here and serve as my butler, and I will treat you well." "You monster, don't daydream any more!"

I'm here to fetch your head. Are you ready?"

While trying to avoid Sanale's spear, Bor Magnai kept his eyes on the red horse and murmured admiringly. Sanale realized that Bor Magnai did not take his assault seriously. He ground his teeth in anger. He did what he could and gradually forced Bor Magnai to the edge of a cliff. Suddenly, Bor Magnai saw eagles flying beneath him and realized he was on the edge of a cliff. If he retreated a few more steps, he would fall off. He became scared and had to fight back with all his might. He brandished the axe and chopped at Sanale. Had the red horse run slower, he would have hit Sanale on the head. After several hundred bouts on the slope, Bor Magnai pretended to run away. Sanale urged the horse to chase after because he thought he would win. When he got closer to Bor Magnai, who brandished his axe and chopped at him, hitting Sanale's left arm. The eight-layer arm shield made of camel skin was cut open and his arm tendon injured, so he had to withdraw. When Jangar saw that two of his Ih Baatar had been defeated, he decided to personally fight Bor Magnai. He silently recited a six-word incantation and shouted the slogans of Bomba and dashed to the battleground. All warriors followed him and surrounded Bor Magnai tightly in the center. Bor Magnai and Jangar fought dozens of bouts. Jangar won - puncturing his spear into the back of Bor Magnai and raising him up in the air. Jangar's warriors shouted in chorus: "Kill him, kill him!"

Kill this monster!

The army of Bor Magnai also cheered for him: "Our Khan is an unrivaled hero, is the descendent of the wolf. You certainly can break the enemy's spear into pieces!"

Bor Magnai tried to calm himself down, grabbed the handle of the spear and roared to muster up strength. He finally broke the spear handle, which was made of twelve sandalwood, into twelve pieces. He fell to the ground heavily , picked up his axe and chopped at Jangar. Hongor , who had recoverd his health and strength , was arriving along with Altan Gheej and Guzen Gumba at that moment. At this critical moment , he roared thunderously and dashed to Bor Magnai from behind , held him by the waist , raised him up in the air and threw him heavily to the ground.
